

Sudan Solidarity Week

Jan 26 - Feb 2 | New York & Washington DC | #sudansolidarity #keepeyesonsudan

On 26th January a coalition of groups from across the US and Sudan are coming together to launch Sudan Solidarity Week. As the war in Sudan approaches its tenth month and the country teeters on the edge of famine, immediate and effective humanitarian solutions are urgently needed. Amidst the crisis, local emergency response groups and mutual aid networks have worked tirelessly to support the civilian population, often in dangerous conditions and with limited resources.

The week begins with a benefit concert in New York hosted by Sunduq Al Sudan and concludes with a keynote address by Samantha Powers at USIP in Washington DC. Throughout the week mutual aid networks, donors, diaspora organizations, researchers, artists, INGOs, and advocacy groups and allies will be strategizing to build an effective and equitable future of aid for Sudan that starts with local communities.

At the center of the events is a Sudanese delegation representing communities from across the country. The delegation is traveling to the US to share their experiences of the war, the life-saving work they are carrying out and to ignite an urgent call for support from the international community.

Sudan Solidarity Week includes a concert, workshops, panel discussions, a film and photography exhibition and more. The events will focus on the experiences and stories of frontline workers in Sudan and will raise resources for longterm humanitarian support.

Take part in Sudan Solidarity week:

- Attend an event
- Use your network to promote Sudan Soliday Week
- Raise awareness about the war in Sudan and the successes of localized aid

SOCIAL MEDIA

Sample tweet/instagram copy:

The war in Sudan is entering its ten month. The country is on the brink of famine and over nine million people are displaced. Yet local groups and mutual aid networks are continuing to provide life-saving aid with little international support. Please #KeepEyesOnSudan #SudanSolidarity #SudanSolidarityWeek
